

PARTNER ACCESS & PARTICIPANT ELIGIBILITY GUIDE

Higher Education & Community-Based Partners

Purpose of This Guide

This guide explains how Higher Education institutions and community-based organizations may offer Interior Essentials programs to students and participants. It outlines eligibility, delivery options, pricing considerations, and implementation expectations.

This document is intended for student success leaders, community program directors, and compliance reviewers. It is not intended for public distribution.

Program Overview

Interior Essentials delivers the Student Life Readiness Program, a structured digital curriculum designed to help students develop practical life management skills related to housing, financial responsibility, shared living, and independent adulthood.

The program supports students in applying these skills NOW within their current living environments, while preparing them for NEXT, life beyond college and independent living.”

Program Structure

The program is delivered through a multi-module digital format covering:

- Time management and responsibility balancing
- Shared living and roommate communication
- Functional space organization and study environments
- Financial readiness and everyday living costs
- Lease readiness and housing decision-making
- Life after college and independent living preparation

Delivery Options

Partners may choose from the following models:

1. Partner-Sponsored Access (Cohort or Pilot Based)

Institutions or organizations may sponsor access for specific cohorts, grant-funded initiatives, or pilot programs, allowing participants to enroll at no cost.

2. Discounted Participant Access

Participants enroll individually at a reduced partner rate through a private enrollment link.

3. Hybrid Model

The partner subsidizes a portion of the program cost while participants pay a reduced balance.

Eligibility Requirements

Participants engage in the program independently and apply content directly to their current living situations.

Pricing Structure & Models

Partner pricing varies by cohort size and delivery model.

Typical ranges: - Sponsored cohorts or pilots: up to 50% reduction - Discounted enrollment: 20–40% reduction

Final pricing is confirmed before implementation.

Partner Responsibilities

Partners agree to: - Communicate program purpose clearly to participants - Share access only with eligible individuals - Avoid public distribution of private materials or pricing - Designate a program coordinator

Enrollment Flow

1. Partner confirms cohort or enrollment model
2. Interior Essentials provides enrollment instructions
3. Partner distributes access details
4. Participants enroll and receive confirmation
